

NUIX DEVELOPER: DOWNLOADING SCRIPTS FROM GITHUB

Expanding Your Nuix Capabilities

Nuix's GitHub respository hosts publicly available scripts you can use to enhance and extend the functionality of Nuix software. This guide will walk you through the steps of downloading a script from the official Nuix GitHub repository.

NOTE

All scripts provided by Nuix on GitHub fall under the Apache License 2.0 as described below:

STEP 2: CHECK OUT THE SCRIPT BEFORE YOU DOWNLOAD

Once you've selected a script, or if you've clicked on a direct link to a script, you will be taken to the script's repository page. This page will have a description and quick overview of the script. Once you've decided you want to download this script to try out, click the "Releases" link along the right-hand side for download options.

STEP 3: DOWNLOAD THE APPROPRIATE SCRIPT VERSION

The releases page lists all the versions available for the chosen script. The most recent release will always be listed on the top. Unless you know of or were instructed to download a specific version, you'll most likely want to download the latest release. To download the script, simply click on the .zip link listed under the "Assets" section of the version you wish to download.
